Also, you will be part of the great team we have assembled during the past two years for building this platform, will work closely with the US-based PMO team of the e-learning company (no middlemen!), and will be directly involved in all strategic discussions regarding the product's roadmap (we are all in this together, as they say).

- English fluency, both written and spoken

You will be required to:

- Write "clean", well designed code
- Provide support, test and maintenance for existing and future features to ensure strong optimization and functionality
- Develop and deploy new features to facilitate related procedures and tools if necessary
- Optimize codebase to ensure scalability and performance
- Maintain the codebase on Git

You are the right person for the job, if you are:

- Able to deal with complex technical requirements, capable of organizing your time, while respecting the given deadlines
- A proactive team player, able to understand your role and how your job impacts others around you, ready to help out without being asked
- Focused on quality, constantly pushing yourself and us to deliver better results, innovative in problem solving and passionate about new technologies
- Mindful and considerate towards your teammates, whether it's at work or during the many off-work things we do together as a team
- A strong believer of giving back to the community, regardless if it's via open-source contributions, mentoring, or sharing knowledge via local meetups
- Expert in FIFA trick shots and key combinations or at least have some p0wning skills when handling a Terran, Zerg or Protoss; a good knowledge of Backgammon & a drip of Catan skills may be required

If this sounds like you, we would definitely like to meet you!

This is a full-time job. Hiring process might also include a knowledge test and a hands-on test – details on both aspects will be provided to you, if you're selected.
